The Message of Easter

Easter is the most important religious festival for Christians. It celebrates Jesus' victory over death. It defines the beginning and the foundation of Christianity. For Christians, the resurrection is an important treasure.

It's also a great love story. Jesus did not come into the world simply to suffer and die. He came to bring God's message of unconditional love and forgiveness.

The Resurrection of Jesus takes us beyond the Cross to the joy and hope that comes from seeing the Risen Lord. Christ risen allowed us to know that there is a future for every human being and that our cry for unending life is indeed answered in Him. This is the true message of Easter! We also have gives us a new sense of certitude, even if when it is very difficult in our lives, even if when we are facing death ourselves, because we know that Jesus rose from the dead. This is the true message of Easter.

Saint Mother Teresa said, "Never let anything so fill you with sorrow as to make you forget the joy of Christ risen.". Yes, there are still trials and tragedies and difficulties in life. But because of Jesus Christ's triumph, because He has been raised from the dead, everything now is made new again. And we have the strength and the ability and the courage to continue to follow the Lord through death to new life.

Such is the message on Easter Sunday. The resurrection of Jesus is also instilling hope in the face of lives trials.

Another thing that the resurrection tells us, is that we have got hope now. No matter how dark our life becomes, no matter how difficult our life becomes, there is hope. This hope is an anchor for our soul. Therefore, if we are going through difficulties, let us hold on to that anchor of hope. This is the basic proclamation of the gospel; the kerygma is the resurrection.

When Christ died on the cross, His message was one of salvation to the whole world. Not just for Christians. God's infinite love for each of us is the true message of Easter. And the reason it is our foremost religious festival is because it is a message of love and hope, that will continue into eternity. Accepting that message, is our choice.

Clean Up Australia Day

Clean Up Australia Day was first held in January 1989. The idea developed from an Australian Bicentenary event, "Clean-Up Lake Macquarie", which was instigated in 1987 by Ivan Welsh as Mayor of Lake Macquarie. Then followed the local "Clean Up Sydney Harbour" event in 1989, organised by Ian Kiernan and Kim McKay, with more than 40,000 volunteers who collected approximately 5,000 tonnes of rubbish. The 1990 Clean Up Australia Day event was launched by the then prime minister, Bob Hawke. Clean Up Australia has evolved into an organisation that works with community, government and businesses to "provide practical solutions to help Australians all live more sustainably every day of the year."

Today, the organisation's focuses are equal in preventing new rubbish from entering the environment as well as removing what rubbish is already present.

"The Rubbish Report" is produced each year from data collected by surveying participants. As of 1990, 94% of rubbish was from packaging. By 1993, the campaign was focusing more strongly on sorting the rubbish collected into recyclables, and Kiernan was using Clean Up Australia Day to advocate for changes to legislation surrounding reduction of packaging and returning packaging to companies. In 2008, Kiernan put a focus on bottled water, advocating for the expansion of container deposit refunds in Australia.

Book Review: All the Lives We Never Lived by Anuradha Roy

Anuradha Roy, the author of "All the Lives we never lived" is a successful Indian novelist. This book is her fourth (published in 2018) hot on the heels of the highly acclaimed "Sleeping on Jupiter". She and husband Rukun Advani reside in Ranikhet, in the foothills of the Himalayas, having founded "Permanent Black", a publishing company focused on academic literature.

'In my childhood, I was known as the boy whose mother had run-off with an Englishman. The man was in fact a German, but in a small town in India in those days, all white foreigners were largely thought to be British'.

Thus begins "All the Lives we never lived", set around the time of the fight for Indian Independence and World War 2. The beautifully written novel features famous individuals from history (Rabindranath Tagore, Walter Spies, etc.) who enter the lives of fictional characters. Narrated by Myshkin

(an endearing nickname), it tells the story of his mother Gayathri (a Bengali Hindu) who left the family to pursue her dreams. Myshkin was only nine when Gayathri moved to Bali embarking on a new life with Spies, a celebrated painter and curator of German heritage.

After his mother's departure, Myshkin's life is spent anxiously waiting for her letters from Bali with the hope she will return. In later years he compares that waiting to 'blood being drained away from our bodies until one day there was no more left'. He seeks to understand why his mother made the choice she did.

India in the 1930s was defined by arranged marriages and rigid customs. Gayathri was the pampered daughter of a free thinker and her unconventional interests made her ill suited for the Indian marriage mart. The only man who would have her was Nek, an Anglo-Indian academic. The marriage was doomed after a short spell. Nek saw art as irrelevant and dance as scandalous. Nek was a member of an anticolonial organisation of patriots directed towards ending British rule in India. The arrival of Walter Spies to their lives (he was an admirer of Tagore) brings possibilities for Gayathri but distrust of the white skin by Nek. Gayathri, spellbound by Spies follows him to Dutch-held Bali where he is a prominent resident. Nek wanders off seeking redemption and returns with a new bride from a village, a step mother for Myshkin.

Anuradha Roy tackles this scenario tactfully. Her skill as a writer is shown in her ability to reveal the consequences of a mother's choice. The absent mother is not condemned but there is compassion for the choices made. Nek's anti-imperial activities are not treated as being impressive while his tyrant behaviour at home is highlighted as a contrast to the freedom he seeks from being ruled. Roy seamlessly shuttles between time, overlaying the past with the present, to create a brilliant tapestry that is the story.

It is a novel of how families fall apart and of what remains in the aftermath.

Visiting Galle

Galle always evokes a deep sense of history and an unparalleled sense of multiculturalism.

As the formerly primary trading city of Sri Lanka, it is a place that is confident in its identity and its past. Compared to its younger and more recently glamorous city of Colombo, Galle appears to be almost stately in its character.

As we stared out over the ramparts of the ancient Galle Fort, built by enslaved Afro Ceylonese people, we were overcome with the weight of multicultural history in this place. Walking across the beaches of Galle, we wondered how many ancient peoples from around the world set foot on these same sandy shores and stared across the churning ocean, before finally turning back and deciding to settle in this place.

An ancient city known to the Romans, Arabs, Persians, Greeks and Egyptians, Galle was occupied for 50,000 years or more by indigenous people of Sri Lanka, whose descendants still exist there and are celebrated in the Galle maritime museum.

Walking through the fort, we were reminded of Ancient Arab traders from Yemen and the Middle East, including Ibn-Batuta who visited and settled here nearly a millennium ago. Their descendants still live and work within the walls of the fort and pray in mosques dotted all around the city.

The Portuguese Ceylonese people, fiercely defended this very fort from the Dutch East India company, giving rise to the saying "Gold in Malacca, lead in Galle". Those same Dutchmen became the Dutch Burghers who still maintain a presence all over Galle. The Portuguese history of Galle is proudly encapsulated within the famous stairway at Jetwing Lighthouse designed by Geoffrey Bawa memorialising the Portuguese conflict with the Sri Wikrama Rajasinghe. The influences of Portuguese lacewear (Beeralu) and cuisine are evident throughout the dining culture and fashion of this city.

The imprints of multiculturalism are in the very place names, Leyn Baan Street (rope making street), Queen Street, Parawa Street referencing the Southern Indian fish traders. Galle itself is a Portuguese word originating in the word "Gallo" a reference to a rooster which is seen as a positive omen in Portuguese culture. The rooster remains on various crests related to Galle. The fort contains a mosque, church and temple reflecting the religious diversity of the local area.

Persians, Malays, Greeks, Chinese and various groups from India, Europe and the British Isles all passed through the ancient port of Galle leaving behind cultural, linguistic, ethnic, gastronomic and fashion influences.

Even the schools in Galle are ancient. Schools such as Southlands College and Rippon Girls School were built in the 1800's; to educate girls at a time when educating women was a rare occurrence around the world.

Galle also has Malay, Tamil, Sinhalese and other communities whose descendants continue to live on and mix into the multi-ethnic melting pot of Galle. The historic homeland of Demon Dancing (Yak natum) which is an ancient amalgamation of Indigenous Demonology with Buddhist and Hindu traditions still echoes through the nights of this ancient city.

Galle is a microcosm of the diversity and intellectualism inherent in Sri Lankans and its dedication to sophistication are evident in the 1832 logo of the Galle Library "Reading maketh a full man". No wonder the Galle literary festival is so globally renowned.

Stories Behind Names of Places in Sri Lanka

ALAGALLA

Alagalla is near Mawanella on the Kandy - Colombo Road. Alagalla mountain is a popular spot for the hill climbers in Sri Lanka and many a mountain climbing competitions are often held here. When descending from the hill capital Kandy this mountain appears very beautiful. A regular climb happens here for the Independence Day of Sri Lanka, the 4th of February.

Often, there are more than one story behind the formation of names of places. I will relate only one of them pertaining to ALA-GALLA.

The story is based on a family, where the mother- in- law and the daughter-in-law had disputes. Though the mother-in-law did not like the daughter-in-law very much she tolerated her as she was the wife of her only child.

The family had enough wealth to manage affairs and the mother-in-law expected only one thing to be done to her by the daughter-in-law. That was that she should cook and offer all three meals to the mother-in-law. This was happening uninterrupted.

One day, the daughter-in-law was boiling SWEET POTATOES (and eq.) for lunch. The daughter-in-law had a special liking for sweet potatoes, and she was planning to eat them alone. When the sweet potatoes were boiling, the aroma began to spread in the house and the mother-in-law was also happy that for lunch, she would have sweet potatoes. She walked to the kitchen and happily commented on the aroma of boiling sweet potatoes.

"Daughter, it is a nice aroma from the boiling Sweet potatoes".

The daughter-in-law promptly replied: "I am not cooking any sweet potatoes. How do you get the aroma of sweet potatoes?" she questioned.

She retreated without any argument. She ate a part of the sweet potatoes alone and served the mother-in-law rice with other curries and she went to have a bath to the spout thinking of eating the balance potatoes (abo) on returning from the shower.

She returned after the shower and with a plate in hand opened the pot to serve the sweet potatoes. She was surprised to see that all the potatoes had turned into stones. The Sinhala word for stones is "Gal" so the potatoes turned in to stones made the name "&GOOGO".

The Role of IESL Overseas Chapters

The Institution of Engineers Sri Lanka (IESL) Queensland Chapter hosted its 18th Continuing Professional Development event on 27th January 2024, featuring the distinguished President of the Institute of Engineers Sri Lanka (IESL), Prof. Ranjith Dissanayake, Associate Prof. Chaminda Gallage.

Prof. Ranjith Dissanayake visited Brisbane, and the IESL QLD Chapter organised this event as part of that. Prof. Ranjith Dissanayake spoke about the overseas chapter role from the President's point of view. Associate Prof. Chaminda Gallage discussed improvements to engineering education in Sri Lanka and what IESL could do. Participants expressed their ideas in a Q & A session to support Sri Lankan Engineering Education and Engineering Profession.

The Management Committee of the Chapter takes this opportunity to thank Prof. Ranjith Dissanayake and Associate Professor Chaminda Gallage for their excellent presentations, everyone who attended the event and 4EB Sri Lankan Radio Group for media coverage.

Collaborative Initiatives for a Resilient Future: Former Finance Minister Ronnie de Mel Passes Away

Ronnie de Mel (Ronald Joseph Godfrey de Mel), the visionary figure credited with the introduction of Sri Lanka's open economy in 1978, passed away on 27 February at the age of 99.

Assuming the role of Finance Minister within the cabinet of the late President J.R. Jayawardene in 1977, Ronnie de Mel spearheaded the transformation towards an open economic model in Sri Lanka. His bold initiatives paved the way for significant economic reforms that reshaped the nation's economic landscape.

Mr. de Mel holds the distinction of being the longest-serving Finance Minister in Sri Lanka's history, having presented a record number of budgets from 1977 to 1987. His tenure was marked by notable efforts to modernise and streamline the country's fiscal policies, leaving a lasting impact on Sri Lanka's economic trajectory.

A political journey that began with the Sri Lanka Freedom Party (SLFP) saw Ronnie de Mel later aligning with the United National Party (UNP), where his strategic vision and deep understanding of economic principles continued to guide national policies.

The passing of Ronnie de Mel marks the end of an era for Sri Lanka's economic history, leaving behind a legacy of innovation and progress that will endure in the annals of the nation's development.

Seniors Social Isolation Grants Now Open

he Queensland Government is expanding a vital scheme that helps older Queenslanders stay connected to each other and their communities.

An additional $2.5 million in grants each year between 2024-25 and 2028-29 to address seniors social isolation is now available for organisations to deliver services as well as for a peak body. Your organisation could join the 42 services already operating across the state and help more people like Rupert stay connected to their peers and their community.

"Rupert (not his real name), who lives alone, was unwell and socially isolated, having not left his home for 12 months when he connected with a local seniors group. A year on, Rupert has connected with other older people in his community, has a thriving social life, is accessing health services and even taking music lessons. And he'd be the first to tell you that his health and quality of life are better for connecting with his community."

Current services provide a range of activities including yoga, tai chi, line dancing, craft and board games, bare foot bowls, cinema visits and lunch groups.

Find out more at Staying connected in your community or Visit the website to find out more about the grants.

Applications for the peak body grant closes 3pm, Friday 15 March 2024 and the grants for the services close 3pm Friday 22 March 2024.

Aphrodite Mal Kollaya: Synopsis

Set within the confines of an elderly home, "Aphrodite Mal Kollaya" weaves a captivating tale around a remarkable group of nine women, aged between 65 and 75. Unfolding against the backdrop of an unexpected adventure, these spirited women embark on a daring escapade - a bank robbery of monumental proportions.

As they diligently prepare for their final rehearsal, their audacious plan to execute the largest heist in Sri Lanka's history takes shape. However, a heated argument ensues, resulting in the abandonment of one of their own while the remaining eight valiantly carry out the daring theft. The aftermath of the heist unveils unforeseen complications and challenges, propelling the narrative towards an enthralling and suspenseful climax.

Sachithra Rahubadd
